CIVIL WAR MAPS & DATA

In following this part of the route of Maj. Gen. W. T. Sherman & his Union forces we find that after he defeated the Confederate forces in Vicksburg, Miss., they marched from there to Jackson, Miss. en route to Meridian, Miss. Their march led them thru our property here near Meridian. From Meridian they went to Enterprise, Miss., later looping back to Meridian again. Research by Joey & Mom, Mlwdc. Recorded by Mlwdc- Feb. 1997.

~~The Civil War~~- War Between the States.

The official date the War began was Apr 12, 1861 when the Southern troops fired on Fort Sumter, the U. S. Military Fort in Charleston, So. Caro. (This info obtained from Adult Service Meridian Public Library, Meridian, Miss., Lauderdale Co.)

The campaign against Vicksburg, Miss. began as early as Nov. 1862. On May 19, 1863 Grants Union forces closed in around Vicksburg, Miss. (My note- this was a major shipping point of the Confederacy on the Miss. River.) Thus began the "Seige of Vicksburg". Pemberton's Confederate forces surrendered to Grant July 4, 1863. Confederate officers in Vicksburg- Johnston, Pemberton, & Taylor. (This info obtained from a book by Jefferson Davis, "The Rise & Fall of the Confederate Government". Book available at the Meridian Public Library, Meridian, Miss., Lauderdale Co.)

Lee surrendered his Confederate forces to Grant Apr. 9, 1865. The last Confederate Army still in the field surrendered May 26, 1865. (This info obtained from Adult Services, Meridian Public Library, Meridian, Miss., Lauderdale Co.)

MISSISSIPPI HISTORY

Everything You Wanted to Know

Mississippi's past is a romantic one, dating back to 1541, when Hernando DeSoto and his soldiers marched through what is now Mississippi searching for gold. Instead, he discovered the mighty Mississippi River.

Since that time eight flags have flown over the state. The flags of Spain, France, England, the United States, the Confederate States, the Republic of West Florida and the Mississippi state flag have been unfurled overhead.

In 1699, Iberville, a Frenchman, founded the first permanent European settlement in the lower Mississippi Valley at Old Biloxi. The purpose was to gain control of the Mississippi River which was felt to be the key to the control of the North American continent.

In 1716, the French established Natchez as an outpost of their coastal colony. Mississippi was ceded to the British by the Treaty of Paris in 1763. In 1779, the Spanish returned to Mississippi and set up their government at Natchez.

Mississippi became a territory of the United States in 1798 with Natchez as the capital. After the War of 1812, Mississippi petitioned for statehood. On December 10, 1817, Mississippi became the 20th state of the Union. Natchez again became the capital but in 1820, it moved to Columbia and then later to Monticello. In 1821, the Legislature selected LeFleur's Bluff on the Pearl River as the state capital and changed the name to Jackson in honor of General Andrew Jackson.

Jackson, Mississippi's original inhabitants were the Choctaw, Chickasaw and Natchez Indian tribes. After a series of wars and treaties, these tribes scattered or became extinct with the exception of a small band of Choctaws remaining at Philadelphia. From 1830 to 1850, Mississippi grew into a great, wealthy cotton empire bringing new people and commerce to the river cities, the Delta and Jackson.

On January 8, 1861, Mississippi became the second state to secede from the Union as the Civil War began. On February 18, 1861, Jefferson Davis, a former U.S. Senator from Warren County, Mississippi, was inaugurated as President of the Confederate States of America.

Many Civil War battles were fought in almost every area of Mississippi, however, the major struggle was against Vicksburg because its strategic location on the Mississippi River made it the primary goal of the Federal Campaigns. Known as "The Gibraltar of the Confederacy," Vicksburg fell on July 4, 1863, and the fate of the Confederacy was sealed.

After a reconstruction era following the Civil War, Mississippi was readmitted to the Union in 1870. The present state constitution was adopted in 1890, and since that time, Mississippi has worked for the economic advancement of its people.

Meridian, Miss.

SHERMAN IN MERIDIAN

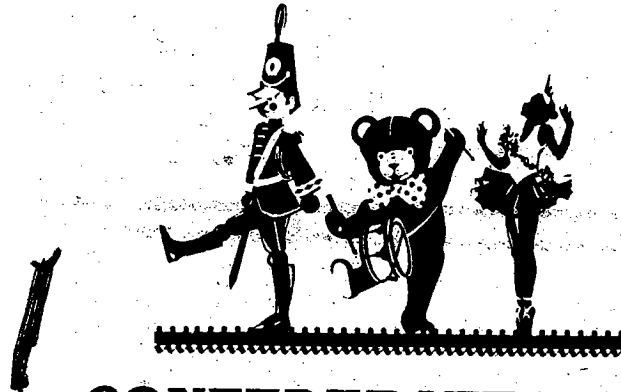

Leaving Vicksburg and Jackson conquered and occupied, Sherman made his raid on Meridian, arriving February 14, 1864, with an army of over 25,000. The town was defended by General Polk with less than a third of that number. Overwhelmed by superior numbers, after lively skirmishes, Polk was forced to retreat in Alabama to Demopolis, leaving the town at the mercy of Sherman's army. Sherman, realizing the importance of the city as a storage place for supplies and a railroad line to the South and East, started a program of the destruction of Meridian. According to Sherman's own account, the men occupied themselves with a systematic destruction of fire of the warehouses and tearing up the railroad tracks—heating the rails in fires until they could be twisted around the trees "Neck-tie" fashion, according to old stories. He amused himself, here as everywhere else, with his torch. At dark every evening his soldiers would commence setting fire to the town until every house in town except the Jones House (used as a hotel), Mr. Ball's log residence, the Gary House and probably one or two other residences were destroyed. The house which sheltered him was not spared but it too fell a victim to the torch as he took his departure. In addition to the burning, his men stole everything they could find and scoured the surrounding area in search of plunder.

"The Jones House was spared, not because of any sympathy of Mr. Jones for the "Union Cause," but because many women and children had taken refuge under his hospitable roof, and by intercession with union officers he succeeded in getting sanction for it to be spared."

Meridian, Miss.

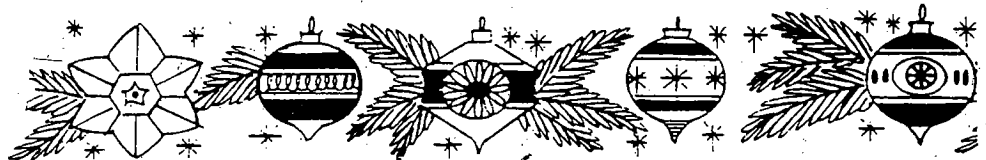

CONFEDERATE DEAD

At the highest point of Rosehill Cemetery stands a mound topped by a memorial shaft dedicated to the confederate dead. This mound is the joint grave of soldiers who died in Meridian during the Civil War. Halfway up this mound is a stone in memory of a Union soldier who died in the same hospital and shares their grave.

This military hospital was located on the hill which, having been cut down to street level, is now the site of the Senior Citizens Center - the block bounded by Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth Avenues and Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets. Men who died in the hospital were buried beside it and they lay there peacefully for some twenty years--long after the hospital had disappeared and the conflict died.

Eventually this location was chosen for the construction of the town's first public high school, Whitfield School, long known to its students as Big Central. The passage of time had made individual graves impossible to identify, and erosion had made all too clear the purpose for which the ground had been used. To preserve its identity and to honor its dead, the cemetery was transferred en masse to Rosehill Cemetery and the mound was built over the communal grave.

That further honor should be paid these last soldiers, it was decided to erect a monument on top of the mound. Some of the funds for this monument were obtained by the performance in May of 1889 of "The Queen of the East," a pageant portraying the history of Meridian and prophesying her future. It was written by E.H. Dial, a young man who was soon to become Mayor of the city he pictured.

Morton, Miss. History of Morton

The history of the town of Morton begins with the coming of Colonel Caleb W. Taylor in January, 1850 to the area of Scott County near the first stage stop after the Hillsboro stop on the Montgomery to Vicksburg stage road. Colonel Taylor was born in Lexington, Kentucky, in 1811. As a young man he moved to Green County, Alabama, and there he married Miss Mary Elizabeth Morton. They moved to Monroe County, Mississippi, after Colonel Taylor purchased land from Robert M. Hudson.

Colonel Taylor left Kentucky as a young man and settled in New Mexico, then moved to Southern California, but becoming dissatisfied he started his journey back to the southeast. He came through Mississippi and was attracted by the typography of the land that is now Morton. He settled here temporarily, but decided to make it his home.

Green Bush or Buck Horn was the name of this settlement prior to the coming of the railroad. Colonel Taylor decided to change the name to Morton in honor of his wife, Elizabeth Morton Taylor.

Colonel Taylor built his home in 1856. The house was constructed by Slave labor. Colonel Taylor owned only seven slaves himself so he hired skilled slaves from neighbors to construct the house from heart-pine.

Colonel Taylor was an old line Whig politically with traditional conservative views. He was an ardent advocate of the rights of states to secede. He was elected without opposition to represent Scott County at the Secession Convention held in Jackson in 1861. He was intensely loyal to the Southern cause and no doubt influenced many of Morton's young men to organize a company for the Confederate States Army. He was largely responsible for financing Company H of the 20th Mississippi infantry. He was called "Colonel" because of his activity in the Secession Convention and his support of the Confederate Army.

In 1858 the population grew as people connected with the railroad moved in. According to Scott County Deed Book H-418, Caleb Taylor sold property to Southern Railroad Company for a depot and a rail right-of-way. This deed was signed October 24, 1859.

At the beginning of the Civil War, Morton had a population of 1,411 and only 971 at the close of the war, five years later. Records show a decrease in population of 12% from 1860-1870, even though the colored population multiplied steadily.

No progress was made in this small town during the war. The homes and land were neglected and going to waste. Schools were shut down and churches were paralyzed. Women and children felt the cold, harsh hand of war.

After the war no outside help was offered. In the county 3000 slaves were freed, about the same time the few hundred despairing soldiers were returning home. They came home to ruin, destruction and debt. Qualified men were not permitted to vote. The supervisor for Beat Three (Morton area) was Sam West, an illiterate Negro preacher. This was Morton's most cruel and brutal period in history.

Morton stands 475 feet above sea level. A survey and plat of the town was made in March, 1866. The date of conveyance was December 1, 1866.

The years 1867-1872 saw the most violent era in Morton's history. There was no law enforcement, crime ran wild. Morton's most thriving businesses were two taverns. They acquired their license at a price of $200.00 each.

By 1872, prosperity began to return and $4,424.00 was the total received for the cotton shipped. The town officials for the year 1873 were: J.C. Chambers, T.W. McCaul and J.P. Harris. Morton had fifteen thriving businesses by 1879.

THE DATA ON THE NEXT 2 PAGES CONCERNING THE WAR OF 1812 WAS COMPILED BY ROBERT EARL WOODHAM.

Association". He is also editor & publisher of the Newsletter,

THE WAR OF 1812

The War of 1812, between the United States and Britain, lasted from June, 1812 until the Battle of New Orleans, 8 Jan., 1815. Most of the war in the South actually took place between local troops in State Militias and several Indian nations allied with the British. I have found no records which show any Turnage actually participated in any particular battle. However, many served in the State Militia during the war.

GEORGE TURNAGE	2nd Regiment (Benton's), Tennessee Volunteers
HENRY TURNAGE	Captain John McNiell's Company, 3rd Regiment (Rutledge's), South Carolina Troops; enlisted 29 June, 1812 for 6 mos.
ISAAC TURNAGE	Captain Mason's Company of Calvary, Tennessee Militia
ISAAC TURNAGE	1st Regiment (Pipkin's), West Tennessee Militia
ISAAC TURNAGE	2nd Regiment (Pillow's), West Tennessee Militia
JAMES TURNAGE	1st Regiment of Mounted Gunmen (Dyle's) Tennessee Volunteers
JOHN TURNAGE	1st Regiment of Mounted Gunmen (Dyle's) Tennessee Volunteers
JOHN TURNAGE	McCrory's Regiment, West Tennessee Militia
JOHN TURREGE	(I believe this is a Turnage instead of Turrege) 2nd Company, detached from the 14th Brigade, North Carolina Militia

MOSES TURNAGE	Pitt County Regiment (Cobb's), North Carolina Militia
RICHARD TURNAGE	2nd Regiment (2nd Battalion) (Oswald's) South Carolina State Troops; enlisted 12 July, 1812 and served to 12 Aug., 1812.
THOMAS TURNAGE	Captain Mason's Company of Cavalry, Tennessee Militia
THOMAS TURNAGE	McCrory's Regiment, West Tennessee Militia
THOMAS TURNAGE	1st Regiment of Mounted Gunmen (Dyle's) Tennessee Volunteers
THOMAS TURNAGE	2nd Regiment (Cheatham's), West Tennessee Militia
WILLIAM TURNAGE	Captain Mason's Company of Cavalry, Tennessee Militia
WILLIAM TURNAGE	1st Regiment of Mounted Gunmen (Dyle's) Tennessee Volunteers
WILLIAM TURNAGE	2nd Regiment (Benton's), Tennessee Volunteers
WILLIAM B. TURNAGE	private in Captain James McEwin (McCuen)'s Company and later in Capt. Owen's Company, Tennessee Militia. Volunteered at Franklin, Tenn.
WILLIAM TURNAGE	Greene County Militia, 2nd Regiment, North Carolina Militia; served during 1814.

Turnages in the War of 1812 was researched and compiled by Robert Earl Woodham.

The various muster rolls of Militia during the War of 1812 are very important to us today, not only because they show the military service of these Turnages but because in the case of Tennessee especilly, it is the only "complete" list of Turnage men who were living there at the time. During this war, the British burned the capitol at Washington and numerous public records were destroyed, including the first three United States Censuses of Tennessee, Georgia and Kentucky. Thus, without these Militia records, we would never know that these Turnages were living in Tennessee during this period.

"Turnage" Men who served in the Confederate States Army
during the Civil War.

Compiled by Mlwdc & son, Joey D. Feb. 1996, Meridian, Miss.

The following 3 men are all sons of Elisha Palmer Turnage Sr.
of Leake Co., Miss. His official records here.
Carmel Turnage enlisted Leake Co., Miss. Served in Co. E, 1st Regt. Miss. Cavalry Reserves. (Have copy of record.) His official records here.

William Bennett Turnage served in Co. D, 1st Regt. Miss.
Artillery. (Have copy of record.) His official records here.

Elisha Turnage. Enlisted Leake Co., Miss. Served Co. B, 40th Miss. Infantry. (Have copy of record- Note- this is Elisha Palmer Turnage Jr. "Dock") official records here -

William Asbury Turnage served in 40th Miss. Infantry. (This is a son of Carmel Turnage, listed just above.) In comparing his birth date on his other records to the date he gave when he enlisted, we find that William fibbed about his age when he enlisted. He was born in 1850. Other than his birth date, all the information on his Civil War records agree with his other records. He is found in the files of the book "Miss.
Grave Registrations- Conf. States Army, Civil War", Author-
Betty Couch Wiltshire. Volume 2. Book available at Meridian, Miss. Public Library.) Copy enclosed later here. (William) Asbury Turnage.

William Henry Turnage served in Co. B, 3rd Alabama Regt. of Infantry.

James Louis Turnage Sr. enlisted in Columbus, Ga. 29 Aug 1862,

OLD VETERAN'S REUNION

The following article was published in the Prentiss Headlight, Prentiss, Mississippi, in September 1912. Nancy Thompson Breland (Mrs. Nancy Breland), who kindly provided a copy to TFN, reported that the original newspaper clipping has been in her mother's Bible since that time.

Veterans of the Sixties Have Grand Reunion at Home of Preston Turnage

August 23, 1912 is a day that will long be remembered by the Veterans and a host of the friends of Mr. Preston Turnage, for as the sun rose on that morning this old soldier, filled with joy at the thought of getting to see and be with his comrades, was busy preparing good things for their pleasure.

And as day came on the Veterans came, too. Some with steady, others with canes, feeble and care-worn (sic) by battles fought since then, each head showing the frost of many winters.

Despite these things, they talked together in great glee until the twelfth hour, at which time a fine dinner, consisting of many nice things, was served by Misses Jennie Hall and Bettie Holloway, acting maids of honor on this joyful occasion.

After every one had dined to his heart's content, a photograph of the Veterans at dinner was made.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the string band of Prentiss and a very striking feature of the occasion was the war whoop, at the close of the tune "Dixie". The same voices that yelled at the enemy fifty or more years ago, yelled again to the delight of their friends. And after these grand things, the occasion was made more interesting by some of the number, with Captain Clough of Prentiss master of ceremonies. Comrade Nat Dale, also of Prentiss, was introduced, and being a natural speaker, and enthused with the meeting, made a grand talk, first mentioning the old soldiers' struggle back in the sixties, then he strongly appealed to the young generation to improve their ways and do more for Christ, and lastly in behalf of the U.D.C.

Next, the host made an eloquent appeal to old and young to show more respect for the aged and live for Christ.

Then others made short talks, and lastly the good lady of Prentiss, Mrs. Clough, made a short talk in behalf of the U.D.C. and after this, more refreshments were served and thrilling music rendered. Then one by one the old soldiers started for home, each one feeling better after having spent a day with a beloved comrade.

The three Turnage brothers in the picture are all Civil War Veterans. Notice the missing fingers on Preston's left hand. They were lost as he served on the Southern side during the tragic war. A fourth brother, Fletcher, lost his life during the Battle of Vicksburg. ←

The three brothers were the sons of David Turnage and Mary Ann (Harrell) Turnage, who migrated, prior to the Civil War, to what is now Jefferson Davis County, Mississippi.

The following is a copy of a letter from the Secretary of the Board of Prisoners, dated 18th June 1864, to the Hon. the Attorney General, in relation to the case of the late Robert Thompson, who had been sentenced to death for the murder of a woman named Sarah. The letter states that the Board of Prisoners have been informed that the late
 Robert Thompson, who had been
 sentenced to death for the murder of a woman named Sarah, has been found to be insane, and that the Board of Prisoners have therefore recommended that he should be committed to a lunatic asylum.
 The letter concludes by stating that the Board of Prisoners have no objection to the proposed course of action, and that they are ready to comply with the wishes of the Government.

"Cadence" call- U. S. Army.

"IN THE EARLY MORNING RAIN"

Got a letter from Uncle Sam
Come be all you can
Fight for your native land
In the early morning rain.

Chorus-

In the early morning rain
In the early morning rain.

When I board that Jet plane
And I bid my farewell
Not knowing where I go
In the early morning rain.

Chorus-

In the early morning rain
In the early morning rain.

Though I'm a long, long way from home
And I miss my baby so
With an achin in my heart
In the early morning rain

Chorus

In the early morning rain
In the early morning rain.

The combat zone is very near
And I feel no fear
I got my weapon here
In the early morning rain.

Chorus

In the early morning rain
In the early morning rain.

See my friend there on the ground
Body twisted all around
Killed in a combat zone
In the early morning rain.

Chorus

In the early morning rain
In the early morning rain

I shot an enemy today
Blew his stinking guts away
And there is nothing more to say
In the early morning rain

Chorus
In the early morning rain
In the early morning rain.

When they lay me down to rest
With a bullet in my chest
Tell my Mom I did my best
In the early morning rain.

Chorus

In the early morning rain
In the early morning rain.

Box me up and send me home
Then I am all alone
But my soul will not roam
In the early morning rain.

Chorus
In the early morning rain
In the early morning rain.

According to the records compiled by the Adjutant Generals office pertaining to the Revolutionary War, there were over 100 "Ward" men who served in the Revolutionary War. This information available at the Birmingham Public Library, Birmingham, Ala.

According to family members, old pictures, old records, & also official documents, my ancestor, William Ward was a late immigrant from Dublin, Ireland. He did however serve in the Confederate States Army during the Civil War. Though there were earlier Ward family members who migrated from Ireland to America, I have not researched these family members as of yet.
